TOTAL POPULATION, INCREASE, AND DISTRIBUTION.

Population of the state.—Vermont was admitted as a state in 1791, being the first state admitted into the Union after the adoption of the Constitution by the original thirteen states. According to the Fourteenth Census, taken as of January 1, 1920, the population of Vermont is 352,428. This represents a decrease of 3,528, or 1 per cent, from the population in 1910.

During the same period the rate of increase for the United States was 14.9.

The following summary shows the population of Vermont from 1790 to 1920, inclusive, together with the number and per cent of increase in each decade, in comparison with the per cent of increase for the United States as a whole:

Counties.—Vermont has 14 counties, 8 of which show a decrease in population during the last decade. (See Table 1.) There have been no changes in county boundaries since 1910.

Density of population.—The total land area of the state is 9,124 square miles and the average number of persons to the square mile in 1920 is 38.6 (see Table 1); in 1910 and 1900 the averages were 39 and 37.7, respectively.

Minor civil divisions.—The political units into which counties are divided are collectively termed "minor civil divisions." In Vermont the counties are divided into 255 primary divisions, comprising 240 towns, 7 cities, 4 gores, 3 unorganized townships, and 1 grant. Avery's gore, in Franklin County, for which no population has been reported at the last three censuses, is not shown in Table 2. The 69 villages constitute the secondary divisions, all of which form parts of the towns in which they are located. (See Table 2.)

Cities.—Vermont has 7 cities, only 3 of which exceed 10,000 in population—Burlington, Rutland, and Barre. (See Tables 3 and 4.) The following summary shows for each of the cities having 5,000 inhabitants or more in 1920 the population at each census for which figures are available, together with the increase during each decade:

Urban and rural population.—The Census Bureau defines urban population as that residing in cities and other incorporated places having 2,500 inhabitants or more, and rural population as that residing outside of such incorporated places.

The following summary presents, for the last three censuses, figures showing the urban and rural population of the state distributed among places grouped according to specified limits of population. The classification for each census is based upon the population of the various places as shown by the returns of that census. Consequently the territory comprised within any one class of cities or that designated as urban or as rural does not remain fixed, because any given place may, through the growth or the decline of its population, pass from one class to another at successive censuses.

The proportion of the population of Vermont living in places of 2,500 or more increased from 22.1 in 1900 to 27.8 in 1910 and to 31.2 in 1920.
